

WE FARMERS

We recognize the vital role that farming plays in all our lives. The Rhode Island Department of Labor & Training provides a full range of employment services for the employment needs of all individuals who are employed or were previously employed in farm work of a seasonal nature.

The Migrant & Seasonal Farm Workers Program (MSFW) funded by the US Department of Labor, offers a wide variety of services and benefits to assist the individuals that meet these requirements.

Resources for Eligible Participants:

- Employment counseling through local netWORKri Career Centers
- Training grants for qualifying individuals
- Resume development and critique
- Free job search and resume posting through EmployRI
- Education assistance such as GED, literacy programs and tuition assistance for qualifying individuals
- Access to job search tools such as computers, phones and fax machines at no cost

These are just a few of the programs and services available at no cost for qualified individuals. For more information, please check out the following links:
